Travelling to New Zealand and Managed Isolation and Quarantine

Managed isolation or quarantine on arrival is required to protect New Zealand from COVID-19.

This means everyone flying to New Zealand will need to get a Managed Isolation Allocation Voucher confirming they have been allocated a place in a managed isolation facility before they can board their flight. A small number of people will be exempt from this, but they may be asked at check-in or when boarding to provide evidence of their exemption. You can find out how to get a voucher or an exemption on www.miq.govt.nz

If you require an emergency MIQ allocation, please note that for some emergency allocations, you must hold New Zealand citizenship or you must be a New Zealand resident* to be eligible to apply. Holding a temporary visa – including a critical purpose visa – means you will be ineligible to apply for most emergency allocation categories. For further information on emergency MIQ allocations, please refer to <https://www.miq.govt.nz/travel-to-new-zealand/secure-your-place-in-managed-isolation/emergency-allocation-requests/>

Unless exempt, you must present your Managed Isolation Allocation Voucher to airlines to board your flight.

Travelling from a very high risk country

Please note that despite holding a visa, you may be temporarily restricted from travelling to New Zealand if you have been in, or are travelling from, a COVID-19 very high risk country. To find out more on the restrictions on travel from high risk countries and who is eligible to enter New Zealand, please see here: <https://covid19.govt.nz/travel-and-the-border/travel-to-new-zealand/restrictions-on-travel-to-new-zealand-from-very-high-risk-countries/>

Your visa

The details above reflect the electronic record of your visa held by Immigration New Zealand (INZ). You do not require a visa label in your passport. Do not attempt to alter this letter. It is an offence under the Immigration Act 2009 to use a document that you know has been altered.

Please check that the above visa details match your passport before you travel and contact INZ immediately if there are any errors.

You may be asked to show this letter when you check in for your flight to New Zealand and/or when you arrive at the New Zealand border. If you cannot show this letter when asked, the airline may not let you board your flight or you may be delayed when entering New Zealand.

How can you prove your visa details without a visa label in your passport?

Your employer can verify the details of your visa online using VisaView. With your consent, other people or organisations such as health care providers or travel agents can verify the details of your visa using the Visa Verification Service. See: immigration.govt.nz/visaview

Do you have a new passport?

If you get a new passport while this visa is still valid, you must request INZ to update your visa details so that they match your new passport. INZ's website has information on how to do this: immigration.govt.nz/transfervisa

You must not remain in New Zealand after your visa expires

You must hold a valid visa at all times while you are in New Zealand. If you do not hold a valid visa you will be in New Zealand unlawfully and you will be liable for deportation. If you do not leave voluntarily before you are served with a deportation order you will face a prohibition period preventing your return to New Zealand in the future.
